

Employee Code of Conduct

Northgate Group — HR Policy | Version 3.1 | Effective 1 January 2026 | Owner: People Operations

1. Purpose

The Code of Conduct sets the standards of behaviour expected of everyone working at Northgate Group, whether in the office, working remotely or representing the company externally. It is read alongside the employment contract and the other policies in this knowledge base. Breaches are handled under the disciplinary procedure.

2. Professional Behaviour

Employees are expected to treat colleagues, clients and suppliers with courtesy and respect. Harassment, bullying, discrimination and retaliation are prohibited and are treated as gross misconduct. This applies equally to conduct in written channels, including chat messages, ticket comments and email.

Ticket comments and internal requests form part of the employment record. Comments should stay factual and professional, should not speculate about a colleague's performance or personal circumstances, and should not be used to raise a grievance. Grievances are raised privately with People Operations.

3. Confidentiality and Data Handling

Employees must not disclose confidential company or client information outside the company, or inside the company to colleagues who have no business need to know it. Personal data about colleagues, including absence and medical information, must only be accessed for a legitimate work purpose.

Company information must be stored in approved systems only. Copying company data to personal storage, personal email or unapproved third-party services is prohibited, as set out in the Software Access Guide and the Remote Work Policy.

4. Conflicts of Interest

Employees must declare any outside interest that could conflict with their duties, including secondary employment, directorships, and close personal relationships with a supplier or a direct report. Declarations are made to People Operations in writing and are reviewed annually.

Gifts or hospitality with a value above a nominal amount must be declined or declared. Cash and cash equivalents must always be declined.

5. Use of Company Systems

Company devices, accounts and networks are provided for work purposes. Limited personal use is permitted where it does not interfere with work, consume significant bandwidth or breach security policy. Employees have no expectation of privacy in company systems, which may be monitored for security and compliance purposes in line with applicable law.

6. Raising a Concern

Employees who become aware of conduct that breaches this Code should raise it with their line manager or, where that is not appropriate, directly with People Operations. Concerns raised in good faith are treated confidentially and the company prohibits retaliation against anyone who raises one.
